15 miles north of Ludlow on the A49

The historic market town Church Stretton is at the heart of the Shropshire Hills. A relatively undiscovered Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty well served with trails and footpaths, fine places to eat and friendly accommodation.

exciting plan to enhance the historic and natural environment throughout the Ludlow Conservation Area which will improve facilities for residents and visitors and we hope to attract more visitors to the town in 2012 and beyond.

progress on some of its projects and priorities. The high quality refurbishment of the Buttercross, including the renovation of cupola and clock, has been recognised with a Heritage Conservation Award. The Market infrastructure replaced the previous year has gone from strength to strength and new interesting Markets have been developed. We were proud to be awarded 'Market Of The Year' for 2011.

Our industrious grounds staff has significantly enhanced the centre of Ludlow with weekly grass cutting regimes and summer and winter bedding plants. We were proud to be awarded Gold by the Heart of England in Bloom Committee again this year.

Church Stretton is the gateway to a walker's paradise. It's a great place to forget the hustle and bustle of your everyday world and discover the delights of the hills, valleys, woods and picturesque villages. There is no quieter place to be in the early hours of a summer's day than the Long Mynd and the Stretton Hills.

The Norman church and Edwardian Antiques Emporium are good examples of Church Stretton's architecture, which spans 900 years. Some of the historic buildings house independent shops, restaurants, pubs and excellent tea rooms.

Rectory Wood is a short walk from the town. You can hire mountain bikes, electric bikes, or a take a summer shuttle bus to explore the heather-clad Long Mynd and ever-popular Cardingmill Valley, which are way-marked for walkers of all abilities. There are also a myriad of other activities to help you unwind including golf, tennis, bowls, croquet and archery, a skatepark, BMX track and play equipment for all ages. wwww.churchstretton.co.uk

The anti erosion works appear to be working well at the Linney riverbank. A long term solution and plans to redevelop the whole area, including a new playground are proceeding well and scheduled to open in the spring/summer of 2012. As this goes to print we are joining forces with the Town Walls Trust and Shropshire Council on an
